AUTHOR'S/SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

Current law provides that a person accused of a crime is entitled to be represented by an attorney. The right to counsel also is protected by the Texas and United States constitutions, and the scope of the right is informed by those constitutional guarantees. A defendant may waive the right to counsel, but that waiver is valid only if it is knowingly and voluntarily made.

Although current law recognizes the right to counsel, it does not adequately or expressly prohibit some long-standing practices utilized in Texas that produce invalid waivers of counsel. It does not proscribe prosecutorial and judicial practices that tend to produce invalid waivers and that jeopardize the finality of criminal convictions obtained subject to such waivers. H.B. 3152 codifies practices necessary to ensure that waivers of the right to counsel are effective and validly obtained.

RULEMAKING AUTHORITY

This bill does not expressly grant any additional rulemaking authority to a state officer, institution, or agency.

(a-2) Prohibits the court from directing or encouraging the defendant to communicate with the attorney for the state until the court advises the defendant of the right to counsel and the procedure for obtaining counsel and the defendant
